"WJCT provides an enormous service by delivering information that is vital, interesting and life-changing to the people who are decision makers in the Jacksonville area. We believe that's who is listening to and watching WJCT – this community's decision makers. ... In supporting WJCT, we accomplish two very important things – we reach this group of people who typically make informed decisions about their health care, and we help WJCT in its service to the community. It's a partnership we value."

– Kim Deppe, Vice President of Marketing and Communications, St. Vincent's

"Jacksonville Orthopaedic Institute supports public broadcasting because of the tremendous resource that WJCT is to our community. Their programming includes art, adventure, educational programs, news analysis and great entertainment. We at JOI are proud to say that we helped."

– Patrick A. Hinton, Executive Director, Jacksonville Orthopaedic Institute

"I am writing to let you know about the wonderful response we received as a result of promoting our 'Become One' program on WJCT's 89.9 FM. Not only did we receive tenfold the number of calls we expected, but the quality of the inquiries was exceedingly high. Thanks so much for being a significant part of our initiative to promote careers in special education!"

– Dr. Kathryn Krudwig, Northeast Florida Personnel Development Partnership, Special Education Dept., University of North Florida

"We believe that WJCT Public Broadcasting provides an important resource to the First Coast area through excellent educational programming and innovative outreach services directly benefiting children and teachers in our community. We are proud to be a partner in promoting WJCT's educational mission."

– Peter S. Rummel, Chairman and CEO, St. Joe Company
