

DeAndrea Fuller is a retired U.S. Navy Commander and the spouse of a retired U.S. Navy Captain. Her military experience includes deployments in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, negotiating international agreements while detailed to the U.S. State Department, and various leadership roles. She endeavors to break down the barriers to care experienced by military members and their families through extensive community outreach.

DeAndrea is a licensed attorney with a bachelor's degree in corporate and organizational communication, a master's degree in international service (International Development), a J.D., and an LL.M in environmental law.